The musical accomplishments of one of Hondo's favorite artists is gaining recognition from musicians from other parts of the State. Miss Irene Saathoff's services are being much sought in many of the musical recitals at the Southwestern University,
Georgetown, where she is making a special study of music, particularly the violin. On February 13th she appeared as one of a quartette in the "Priest March from Athalia." On Wednesday evening (Washington's birthday) she played before the Scholarship Societies of the State.
These societies are composed of the most promising musical students of the State. On the 27th of this month she will again appear as assistant to Annie Edward Barcus in an original arrangement of "The House of Rimmon." Miss Irene is one of Hondo's most popular daughters being shown her.

Prescriptions

Bring your prescriptions to us.

We take special care to fill them correctly and promptly, and know that our drugs are pure. Generally when people buy medicine they are satisfied if it is pure. This is good as far as it goes, but purity in medicine is not everything. Your medicine must have proper STRENGHT, too. That is it must be of a standard strength, made exactly right.

Our one aim and ambition is to have all our medicine pure, fresh and of standard strength. That is the only kind of medicine that cures, and that is the only kind you want, and if you will bring your prescription here that is the only kind you will get.

REMEMBER, we have a large and exceptionally complete stock of everything usually kept in a first class Drug Store.

HEYO HEYEN.

Medina County lost one of her oldest and most highly esteemed citizens—one whose life bound the present with the past history of the county—when Heyo Heyen fell asleep at the home of his son, Louis Heyen, at New Fountain, last Saturday.

Deceased was born May 8, 1848, in Grossenfenn Ostfriesland, Germany, and came to America with his parents when but seven years old, landing at New Fountain in 1858, and he had made his home in that section ever since. In 1869 he was united in marriage with Miss Frentje Bohmfalk; nine children were born to this union, six boys and three girls, all of whom, together with twenty-nine grandchildren, survive to mourn his departure. His aged consort preceded him to the grave by only a few weeks.

Sixty-seven years—more than the average span of life vouchsafed to man—deceased had lived among the people of Medina County, and by his upright life had endeared himself to all who knew him, and will long be held in affectionate memory by his neighbors and friends.

His funeral occurred Sunday afternoon, his mortal remains being interred in Oakwood cemetery, a large assemblage of friends being present to pay a last tribute of respect to one they had loved in life.

To the grief-stricken loved ones left behind the sympathy of our people go out in unstinted measure, but the thought that he has gone to receive the reward beyond the skies for a life well lived in this world should reconcile them to their loss.

Fresh: "I don't know what to do with my week-end."

Soph: "Put your hat on it."

A NEW JOURNALISTIC STAR.

A new journalistic star arose at Hondo this week. "The Hondo Protestant Messenger," a four column folio, devoted to the Protestant religion and its up-building in Hondo and Southwest Texas, made its initial appearance here Wednesday. The paper is edited and published by Rev. S. C. Swinney, pastor of the local Baptist church, and Rev. Geo. G. Smith, pastor of the Hondo Methodist church. Both gentlemen are strong, vigorous writers and the paper is ably edited. The work on their part is a labor of love, they having chiefly in their minds the furtherance of their ministerial work to which they feel themselves Divinely called and ordained, but the liberal advertising patronage accorded the initial issue by the local business and professional men of our town assures its financial success.

The new publication covers a field peculiarly its own, and therein is in no wise a competitor of the local newspaper. We hope that in its chosen field it may glean abundantly, for indeed there is much good that it may do.

The mechanical work on the Protestant Messenger was executed in the Anvil Herald print shop, but aside from our effort to give its publishers a creditable piece of printing for which we are paid a reasonable and fair price, just as we deal with all other buyers of printing service who favor us with their patronage, we are not otherwise interested in it.

The paper will make its appearance each Wednesday and if you missed the first issue look for the next. It will speak for itself.

An Expedient

If Martha's name were something else—

Say Polly, Prue or Janet—

I might complete an ode to her, If I but once began it.

But inspiration balks at names

Which lack both rhyme and beauty,

And ingenuity's at a loss.

To meet poetic duty.

As rhymster, I would use my art This once for Martha's glory,

For all my heart is hers alone,

But—that's another story!

So there is only one way left

To have both rhyme and kisses;

I'll take her to the minister

And change her name to "Mrs."

—Wayside Tales.

The Silver Lining

"Isn't it great!" chortled Jones. Blinksville is quarantined on account of smallpox."

"What's great about that?" demanded Smith.

"Well, you see," explained Jones, "I've just bought a new car and inherited ten thousand dollars."

"Well?"

"And all my in-laws live in Blinks-ville!" he finished jubilantly.—Way-side Tales.

Did you ever hear the story of Cliff(s) drive? It's a bluff.

FLETCHERIZED FARM FACTS

By Fletcher Davis.

SPREAD OF PINK BOLLWORM MAKES NECESSARY CHANGE OF METHODS.

Increasing Number of Cotton Pests Makes that Crop Too Uncertain for Sole Dependence for Living—Need of Humus in Soils and Movement of Weevils Makes Burning Stalks Unwise.

BY FLETCHER DAVIS,

Written Specially for The Semi-Weekly Farm News.

Another pink bollworm infestation has been discovered in Texas. This time it is in the southern part of Grayson and the northern part of Collin Counties, two banner cotton counties of the State. With the wide dispersion of this pest over Texas and with the difficulties that must attend not only the growing, but the shipping of cotton under pink bollworm conditions, it becomes more and more imperative that a change of methods be made. The man who makes cotton his main dependence in face of the dangers that beset its production and the uncertainties and vexations that attend its marketing is indeed gambling with big odds against him.

Smaller Acreage, Better Care.

In future a smaller acreage must be planted to the best varieties and the crop must be pushed by a more intensive cultivation if any success at all is to be achieved. Inferior, scrub seed, planted indiscriminately on any kind of soil and cultivated differently, can but be expected to yield disappointment. One should not waste his time in so fruitless a manner.

Community System.

In Nueces County they have adopted a community system of growing certain varieties. All of the adjoining farms in a given community plant seed of the same improved variety and grow no other kind. In this way the collective wisdom of the community is exercised in selecting the variety best adapted to the particular section. The skill of all is employed in improving the variety selected.

And through the co-operation of all in one common purpose the variety is kept pure through the avoidance of cross-pollination in the fields and mixing of seed at the gins. A noticeable improvement in the quality of the cotton grown is already apparent and people from everywhere are turning to that section for the purchase of seed. What one community or section has done others may do. And in these uncertain times whatever can be done to render the production of cotton safer and profits surer most certainly should be done.

Stalk Burning Unwise.

Farmers have begun early to cut, rake and burn their cotton stalks in an effort to minimize insect infestation another year. Although generally recommended and no doubt helpful in some degree, it is of questionable value. Of course, where stalks have made an excessive growth on account of an abundance of nitrogen in the soil it might be employed with profit, but where the humus content of the soil is already deficient the further robbing of the soil of this very necessary ingredient may prove more damaging than would the boll weevils that might be destroyed by the burning process. Then, too, when the cutting and the burning is attempted while the stalks are still green there is likely to be sufficient of the stubble left to afford harboring places enough for weevils to re-infest next year's crop. The better plan, where possible, is to cut the stalks as closely as possible. If burning is to be resorted to at all, it should not be done until some cold day in winter after the weevils have hibernated and ceased their migrations.

At such times all waste places adjoining the field should be carefully and thoroughly burned over as such places often harbor many of the weevils.

Producing With Profit.

Early precautions of this kind against insect pests, together with a thorough preparation of the seed bed, the planting of improved seeds on soils especially adapted to cotton, and the pushing of the crop to early maturity through intensive cultivation and judicious fertilizing may enable many of our Southern farmers to produce cotton profitably despite all the handicaps that now render the growing of cotton such a hazardous enterprise.

But suppose these methods should succeed? Or suppose some wonderful discovery not yet dreamed of by our scientists should be made which would enable us to grow a full normal crop? Suppose we were to grow a 16,000,000-bale crop in 1922, as we did in 1914? What would it profit us? We have failed to market

The Average Man.

Here is a toast to the average man, Patiently doing the best that he can; Working away For his average pay, And knowing he's classed as an also-ran.

Faithful and cheerful and brotherly, Making no boast of his honesty; Doing the right As given the light, With never a taint of the Pharisee.

Helping a neighbor in need of his aid, Marching light-heartedly, firm, unafraid.

Taking the pain, The loss and the gain, The pleasure and sorrow, as part of the trade.

Bearing the musket when need does arise, Following duty, expecting no prize;

Doing his stunt; Bearing the brunt;

Upright and looking all men in the eyes.

Claiming no right save as one of the clan,

Fighting the fight that his leaders began;

Plugging along With the rest of the throng

A pretty good scout is the average man.

—Exchange.

If the Republican party wants to "lose" the bonus agitation let it propose the repeal of the Volstead dry monstrosity and raise the money by an excise tax on light wine and beer. In the debate pro and con that would follow, the bonus agitation would be forgotten.

There are loyal hearts, there are spirits brave,

There are souls that are pure and true;

Then give to the world the best you have

And the best will come back to you.

—Madeline S. Bridges.

William Jennings Bryan gives eight good reasons why young men should choose farming in preference to the other occupations and professions. Here they are: "Farming is the most independent way of living; less capital is required to start farming than to enter any other independent business; all members of the family can participate in some way in the work of the farm; farm life is healthful; farming develops useful habits of industry and application; the farm provides the most wholesome environment for growing children; farm life teaches the true philosophy that labor is honorable and worthy of reward; the farmer is the most independent factor in our political life."—Exchange.

If personal liberty means that every man has the right to do as he pleases, then there can be no government and social order is impossible. Order is the essential of government and absolute freedom of individual action can only mean anarchy. Unless, indeed, man be so perfected in his mental and moral constitution that the true concept of right and justice is entertained and acted upon by all alike. In such case there would be social order, for social disorder would not be possible. Government would not then be needed, for there would be no function for it to perform unless perchance to give protection against some outward foe of the aggregation.

MRS. MARY ANN FITZSIMON
DEAD.

Mrs. Mary Ann FitzSimon died after a brief illness at the home of her son, Dr. John T. FitzSimon, in Castroville, Texas, at 3 o'clock a.m., Wednesday, February 22, 1922. Her remains were tenderly laid away to their last long rest in the Castroville Catholic cemetery Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, after a requiem high mass in the St. Louis Catholic church.

Grandma FitzSimon was born in Dublin, Ireland, some 86 years ago. As we first knew her, more than twenty-five years ago, she was a typical Irish lady of the educated class. Vigorous, energetic and active of body, and bright, intelligent and keen-witted of mind, to have her acquaintance was indeed a pleasure. Of late years she almost completely lost the senses of sight and hearing, and became a constant care on the hands of the Doctor's family. Still strong of mind and faithful to the tenets of her religion, though almost blind and helpless, she made her daily devotions at the shrine of her beloved church until stricken with her last illness, and, if so be that beyond the dark portals of death there awaits a crown of triumph for the faithful, surely she is now wearing one of a glorious brightness.

Mrs. FitzSimon came to America with her husband, the late John FitzSimon, and their only son, Dr. John T. FitzSimon, then a young man. They first settled in the North, but later came to San Antonio in the early 90's. Mr. FitzSimon died in the early summer of 1896. After his death, Mrs. FitzSimon came to Castroville where she has since made her home with her son and family. This son, ten grandchildren and four great-grandchildren are her survivors.

The funeral obsequies were conducted by Father Heckman, the beloved pastor of her church, assisted by two Oblate Fathers from the Oblate Seminary of San Antonio, and Rev. Lawrence FitzSimon, a grand-son of the deceased. The funeral was conducted according to the beautiful and impressive rites of her church, and could she have ordered its every detail it could not have been more nearly to her liking.

After life's fitful fever, in which she bore much in the way of bodily affliction with a patience and fortitude as remarkable and praiseworthy as it was rare in poor frail human kind, she fell asleep, like a little child going into peaceful, restful slumber, made confident and unafraid by the strength of that sublime faith and trust that had sustained her through her long life of varied experiences and the lonely years of illness and silence.

It is not for us to weep for the departed, but rather to compassionately ourselves for the loss of a loved one whose life has been so rich by way of example in the glorious attributes of a sustaining faith and hope.

OUR FIRST PRESIDENT.

From The Huajillo Leaf.

Why do we celebrate Washington's birthday? It is not merely because he was the first president of these United States, although that is a great thing. The story of his life and great accomplishments is so familiar that it will not be necessary to relate them here. Let's consider the greatness of the man himself.

When we think of the great things that he and his little, poorly equipped army did against an army as large and well equipped as that of the British army, we wonder what could have made it possible. Surely nothing could have done it but the true patriotism, patience and kindness that made the commander-in-chief loved and respected by all his men, and inspired them to do their best.

His greatness was again shown, when, after the war, the people in all the thirteen colonies, who had never before been able to agree and unite, united and elected Washington as their President. Again, it was the patience and skill of the leader that brought about success, without a very skillful leader, the many disputes over the form of government would have made it seem impossible to ever unite the people, and perhaps the United States would not have been established.

Also, the seemingly unimportant act of cutting the cherry tree and confessing it, has done its part in making Washington known and loved by all, because it showed that he was truthful.

All of these, and the many other things that have made Washington worthy to be called "The Father of His Country," ought to be remembered, at least, on his birthday.

The Oldest Man in the World

Just part of a skull, two molar teeth and a thigh bone! Pieced together they made—what? One of the most perplexing mysteries in the study of human history. Were these the remains of an ape-like man who lived 500,000 years ago?

Scientists believe that they were; they call him the "Dawn Man," and out of the record embedded in the rocks they have reconstructed the conditions of his life. How he killed his food and tore the raw flesh from the bones; how he married and fought and died! How little by little he clawed and clubbed his way up to mastery over the beasts. It is a fascinating, gripping story, but it is only one of a thousand stories that stir your blood in this greatest book of modern times.
